

There was a tenant house up in the field, kindly behind the pond. I wanted my parents to move because at this house were several banana trees. I always loved bananas but we were near my grandparents where we lived. After Uncle Jim died my grandfather had a stroke, so we moved back in the house with them so my father could care for all the animals & be there if he was needed.