

Oh yes, Mildred Nobles was visiting me she asked me if I remember the dogs getting the students' lunches off the bottom shelf of the dinner House. This happened the first year I came to Nashville to school.

The principal decided the best way to solve this problem was to let one of the larger boys sit out near the dinner house in the shade to keep the dogs run off. The boys would do it their vacant period. Finally, the community came to the principal's rescue. So the community solved the problem by making everybody keep their dogs on leashes.
